I started reading when I was six (I can remember clearly), but it wasn't until my eighth year that the books started to take hold of me. The first book that made me fall in love with books was 'Kaptan Ka Beta', published by Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan. Though the content was very 'simple', I really liked it. It is because of this book that I started reading. I would never have thought that one can learn so much from books. That is why I decided to write about the top ten books every student should read. The list doesn't need any explanations, because each book has its own narrative and every reader will interpret it differently, but still I will share what made me choose these 10 books. 1. A Tale of Two Cities (By Charles Dickens) The story is set in London and Paris before and during the French Revolution. It begins with the description of the old French man, who is facing execution for his crimes, which is followed by a detailed description of his past life. The protagonist, Charles Darnay, who symbolises the French middle-class at that time, is arrested for his alleged crime and sent to Paris for trial. This classic book revolves around the history of France and England during this period. So if you are someone who enjoys historical fiction, then you will love it. 2. A Nightingale Sang In Berkeley Square (By Mary Cholmondeley) I've always been a big fan of British classics and I came across this book one day when I was surfing through a website. The title intrigued me enough to click on the link. The story was so simple yet so intriguing that it got me hooked from the very beginning. In this book, Charles Dickens narrates the story of a middle-class family where every member is suffering from some kind of problem related to their mental health.
